

A Statistical History of Middleborough High School Football

M

Some notes and thoughts after researching the statistical history of Middleborough High School football:

I chose 1910 as the "official" beginning of MHS football because 1910 seems to be the first year that the team had a coach who was associated with the Middleborough schools. William A. Harthorne was the coach between 1910-13 and was a commercial teacher at the high school.

In 1918, during the flu epidemic, there were few games played and, apparently, no coach. There were very few men teaching at Middleborough High School and the turnover among teachers was high as the school district paid a very low salary. I could not find any evidence of football games played in 1919.

Prior to 1910, there were football games played but it seems that it was the players that coached and scheduled their own games. Sometimes there were schedules posted at the beginning of the season. Other times, MHS called up local schools on a weekly basis and played games at a moment's notice.

There were a few games that were scheduled in the Middleboro Gazette that I never found results for. I had people search for me in the Brockton Public Library and in the Plymouth Library. They found some results and couldn't find others. I am going to assume that those games were never played. Scores were listed in many MHS yearbooks and many of the more recent games were posted in the Thanksgiving preview section of the Boston Globe each November.

Any games that were scheduled against non-high school teams, such as the MHS alumni on Thanksgiving, I considered them exhibition games and did not include them in the final record of that season.

Credit to Michael J. Maddigan and the Middleborough Historical Association from the book "Images of America: Middleborough" for the cover photo of the 1905 MHS football team. And credit Sean Siciliano, Middleborough Public Schools Coordinator of Technology, for his photo of the 2021 Middleborough Sachems running out of the tunnel. Thanks to Aaron Souza, MHS digital imaging teacher, for designing the cover.

No evidence of games played,
possibly due to the influenza

Notes: A three-game series, to determine the Southeastern Massachusetts champion, was proposed against Bristol County champion Taunton High School but was never played.

Walter A.D. Clark was, apparently, an independent teacher in commercial subjects and opened a commercial school in Middleborough, but was never hired by the Middleborough Public Schools.
